

A weekend festival of political song for choirs and anyone who enjoys Singing for Change

7pm on Friday 10th to 2pm Sunday 12th March 2017

Friday evening: meet up and informal singing in a large pub in South East London which serves food. Singers from outside London meet their hosts and travel home with them (local B&B info available on request).

Saturday: meet at Zion Baptist Chapel, 466 New Cross Road, SE14 6TJ from 9am. Workshops to learn/teach songs throughout the day. Tea/coffee and lunch provided. Break at 5pm. Reassemble for evening concert 7.30pm. 9pm onwards, informal singing at a nearby community venue.

Sunday: meet in Greenwich at 10.30am for a stroll and to sing to the masses. Travel by boat to Tate Modern where we will sing again, have a picnic and say goodbye.

Please contact Festival@strawberrythieveschoir.org.uk to book a place, ask for accommodation, suggest a song to teach and suggest songs for the songbook to be given to each participant.

Cost £10 per person to cover lunch, refreshments and songbook.
